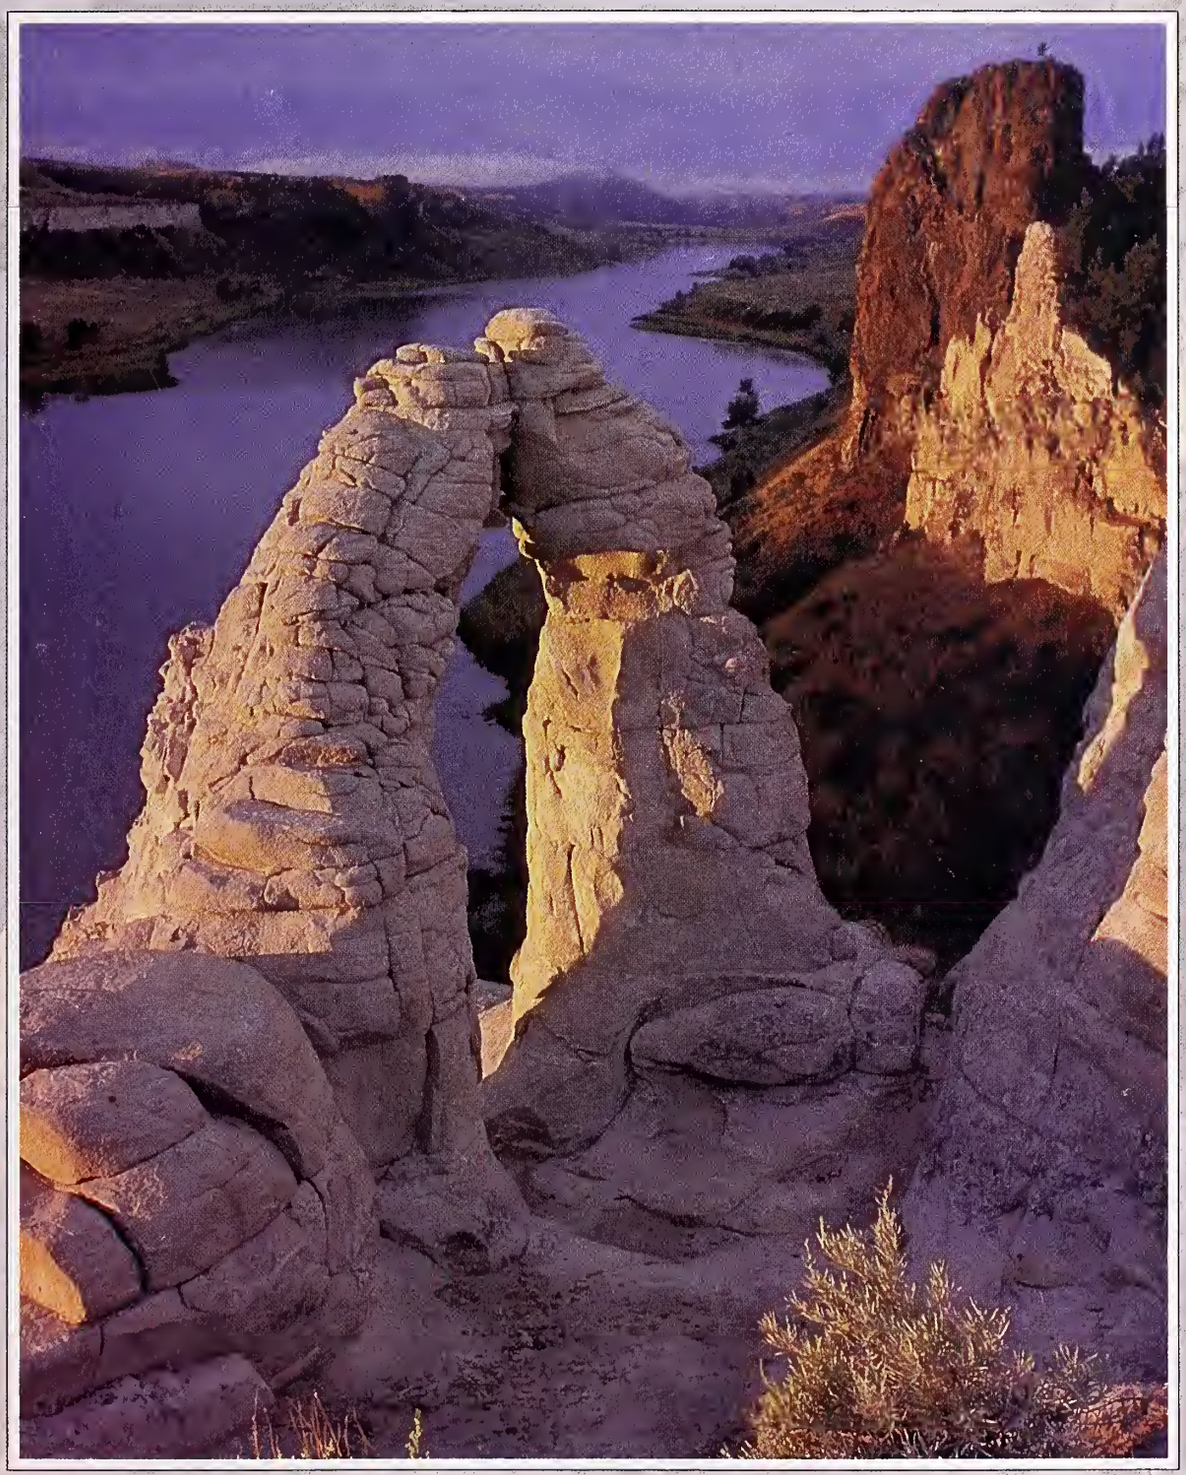
1993 Recreation Guide



Montana State Library
3 0864 1006 7161 2

You're invited to discover Montana. The "Big Sky" offers you over 25 million acres of national forests and public lands, thousands of miles of hiking trails, extensive fishing access, abundant wildlife, over 300 campsites managed by state and federal agencies, 60 state parks and two national parks.

Donnie Sexton

How to enjoy all this? Well . . . there is hiking, biking, rock climbing, rock hounding, hunting, fishing, floating, boating, skiing, and snowmobiling, to name a few. Come spend some time with us. We'll guarantee you'll take home the best kinds of memories—those that linger for a lifetime.

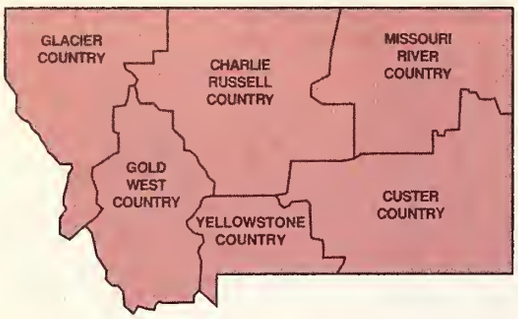
Exploring Montana – Six Exciting Choices!



From the spectacular western mountains to the sprawling eastern plains, Montana contains a tremendous variety of landscapes, recreational opportunities, and historical sites. To help you explore Montana, we have divided the state into six vacation countries, each with its own unique attractions and superb scenery.

Glacier Country

Glacier Country is Montana's spectacular northwest corner, a dazzling mixture of wildlife and wilderness, sparkling lakes and lush pine forests. Explore the soaring beauty of Glacier National Park, play nationally acclaimed golf courses, spend a week at family resorts, and discover wild rivers that are perfect for fishing and rafting.
Contact: 800-338-5072 or 756-7128

Gold West Country

Gold West Country is Montana's colorful southwest corner, a beautiful region of lofty mountains and broad valleys, restored gold-mining camps and prized trout streams. Walk through a historic Indian battlefield, hike backcountry trails, and cast a line into fabled rivers that beckon trout fishermen from around the world. Contact: 846-1943

Charlie Russell Country

Charlie Russell Country is north-central Montana as the famed western artist loved it, a dramatic expanse of land and sky, colorful cowboys and Plains Indians. Float the wild and scenic Missouri River, follow the trail of Lewis and Clark, visit prehistoric hunting sites, and explore mountain ranges where the Rockies meet the Great Plains.
Contact: 800-527-5348 or 761-5036

Yellowstone Country

Yellowstone Country is a magnificent mountain paradise in south-central Montana, an unforgettable land of watchable wildlife and majestic peaks, scenic highways and blue-ribbon trout streams. Visit Yellowstone National Park, stay at historic dude ranches, or take a high-country trip through a pristine wilderness area.
Contact: 800-736-5276 (within U.S.) or 446-1005

Missouri River Country

Missouri River Country is Montana's far-flung northeast corner, a fascinating land of high plains and deep badlands, vast wheat ranches and the mighty Missouri. Visit a million-acre wildlife refuge, watch thousands of waterfowl take to the Big Sky from prairie ponds, and launch a motorboat on immense Fort Peck Lake, one of the nation's best walleye fisheries. Contact: 525-3410

Custer Country

Custer Country is Montana's southeastern corner, a historic landscape of Indian reservations and meandering rivers, rolling hills and rugged canyons. Tour the grassy hilltop where Lt. Col. George Custer lost his life in the Battle of the Little Bighorn, and fish for trout, walleye, and smallmouth bass in some of Montana's finest lakes and streams.

Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks

The Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks provides for the stewardship of the fish, wildlife, and recreational resources of Montana, while contributing to the quality of life and increased opportunities for public enjoyment for present and future generations.

State Parks

Within the vast boundaries of Montana lie unique and wonderful treasures waiting to be explored and experienced by those seeking a oneness with nature and time. Montana's state parks offer the opportunity to watch your children catch their first fish, to set your imagination free as you visit some of our historical beginnings or view the fossilized remains of another time, to recreate in some of the most beautiful surroundings anywhere.

Either vigorous recreation or sheer relaxation can be accommodated in Montana's state parks and affiliated lands. There are sites within the State Park System that are less than an acre in size, while others cover thousands of acres. You can stay an hour, or a week. In short, whatever your reason for wanting to get away, Montana's state parks have something for everyone!

While entrance to many State Park System sites is free, a nominal fee is charged at developed facilities. State Park Passports, which allow the holder unlimited access to state parks for an entire year, are $15 each. However, a special 20 percent discount is offered to those who purchase passports between November 30 and February 14. A second passport can be purchased for half price. Passports make great holiday gifts for frequent users of our State Parks.

Fishing

Whether it's fishing for wild trout on one of Montana's infamous "blue-ribbon" rivers and streams, trolling the depths of Flathead Lake for jumbo lake trout, or working submerged cover in Fort Peck Reservoir in hopes of hooking into a tackle-testing walleye, Montana is a magical place to fishermen throughout the world. One of the reasons Montana is so attractive to anglers is the diversity of fishing opportunities the state has to offer. Pristine headwater creeks, glacier-fed streams, rushing rivers, farm ponds, reservoirs and natural lakes provide opportunities for nearly every fresh-water fishing interest and a variety of fish in the angler's creel. Fees and regulations are outlined in the current Montana Fishing Regulations, available by visiting any Department office or licensing agent.

Hunting

When it comes to wildlife and hunting opportunities, Montana has something to satisfy nearly everyone. There's something for the person who cherishes hunting a wide selection of big game animals in an incredible variety of habitats; something for those who appreciate the state's sweeping scenery, its diverse biological systems, and its abundance of elbow room; as well as something for hunters that defies interpretation, such as the shrill bugle of a rutting bull elk on a high-country divide.

Information on the Big Sky Country's impressive array of hunting opportunities–as well as hunting rules, regulations, and licensing criteria–is available from all regional offices of the Department of Fish, Wildlife & Parks, from the Department's headquarters in Helena, and from more than 400 license agents across the state.

Forest Service

U.S. Department of Agriculture

Recreation on our national forests comes in many varieties. Sightseeing to motorcycling, horseback riding to picnicking, hunting to snowshoeing, cross-country skiing to kayaking, and fishing to exploring ghost towns and other historical sites await the outdoor enthusiast.

Montana's ten national forests display a wide variety of landscapes, from gentle rolling hills and isolated ponderosa pine woodlands to rugged mountaintops and steep timbered canyons. Almost seventeen million acres provide many resources– recreation, trees for harvest, forage for sheep and cattle, good fish habitat, food and shelter for wildlife, minerals, water, and wildlands for future generations.

One in every five acres of national forest land is designated as part of a protected Wilderness, abundant with Wild and Scenic Rivers and wildlife. Here, in relative solitude, visitors find areas maintained in their natural and undeveloped state, providing relief from the pressures of today's society.

Visitors can camp and picnic almost anywhere in the national forests of Montana. For those seeking more convenience, campgrounds usually contain a parking spur, table, fireplace, and toilets. Water is also provided in many areas. Some sites are accessible to the handicapped or disabled. Showers, laundry facilities, electrical hookups, and hot water are not provided. Reservations are available for some popular campgrounds by calling Mistix at 1-800-283-CAMP. For the more adventurous, there are numerous isolated roadside and backcountry picnic areas and campsites. These do not contain improvements such as toilets, tables, or fireplaces.

MONTANA'S NATIONAL FORESTS AT A GLANCE

16,800,000 total acres
3,376,000 acres of classified Wilderness
61,000 acres of National Recreation Area
30,000 miles of road
13,500 miles of hiking trails
2,500 miles of winter trails
336 campgrounds and picnic areas
219 miles of Wild and Scenic Rivers
36 resorts and organizations
12 downhill ski areas

. . . providing an estimated 9,400,000 recreation visitor days of use each year

Campgrounds requiring a fee are signed, and limitations on length of stay, if any, are posted. Horses and the shooting of firearms in developed campsites are prohibited.

For more information on the national forests in Montana, as well as the entire Northern Region, "A Guide to Your Northern Region National Forests" is available from the USDA Forest Service in Missoula.

Cabin Rentals

For those who seek the solitude of a true backcountry experience, the forest service has a few rustic cabins and lookouts for rent on a first-come, first-serve basis. Cabins are furnished with the bare basics (table, chairs, wood stove, and bunks). Bedding is not furnished. Cooking utensils, electricity, and piped-in water are generally not available. Expect to use outdoor privies. Forest Service personnel at the national forest in which the cabin is located will be able to tell you what you need to bring. For a "Recreational Cabin & Lookout Directory," write or call the USDA Forest Service in Missoula.

Bureau of Land Management

U.S. Department of the Interior

From the Rockies to the plains, the more than eight million acres of public land administered by the BLM hold an array of recreational treasures and provide much of the habitat that contributes to Montana's excellent hunting, fishing, and wildlife watching opportunities.

Unlike the large blocks of land managed by other federal agencies such as the National Park Service or the Forest Service, BLM lands are scattered among hundreds of separate parcels. There is BLM land in nearly every Montana county. Detailed maps are available at all BLM offices.

Many undeveloped areas provide an opportunity to enjoy true solitude in a somewhat primitive setting. The BLM also has numerous fully developed recreation sites. The Ruby Creek, Red Mountain, South Madison, and West Madison campgrounds are nestled along the Madison River. The Holter Lake Recreation Complex sits north of Helena on the Missouri River. The Camp Creek and Montana Gulch campgrounds are tucked away in the scenic Little Rocky Mountains about 50 miles southeast of Malta.

Montana holds two firsts for BLM– the Pryor Mountain Wild Horse Range and Bear Trap Canyon Wilderness.

Pryor Mountain Wild Horse Range

The Pryor Mountain Wild Horse Range, which runs along the western rim of Bighorn Canyon in southern Carbon County, was the first designated range in the country. About 120 wild horses call the rugged Pryors home. The horses share the 34,000-acre range with a variety of big game that includes bighorn sheep and black bears.

Bear Trap Canyon

The Bear Trap Canyon Wilderness just north of Ennis was the first wilderness area in the nation managed by BLM. The canyon was formed by the Madison River as it cut north through the mountains. The canyon itself offers an exceptional day of hiking. In addition to blue ribbon trout fishing, the river challenges even the most experienced white water floaters. Trail Creek Access Recreational Area, at the head of the canyon, is the first fishing, picnicking, and sightseeing park on the Madison fully handicapped accessible. Montana Power Company played an integral part in development of this sight.

"The Bureau of Land Management is responsible for the stewardship of our public lands. It is committed to managing, protecting and improving these lands in a manner to serve the needs of the American people for all times. Management is based on the principles of multiple use and sustained yield of our nation's resources within a framework of environmental responsibility and scientific technology."

Humbug Spires

About 30 miles south of Butte, the Humbug Spires are a paradise for rock climbers. Nature seems to have created a series of eerie faces in the primitive area's giant granite monoliths. Square Butte, south of Great Falls, is another unusual geologic feature. Like Humbug Spires, this flat-topped formation is an outstanding example of undisturbed terrain that remains much as it was when settlers first arrived.

Garnet Ghost Town

Garnet Ghost Town is hidden deep in the Garnet Mountains about 40 miles east of Missoula. The town was born during a minor gold rush in the 1890s. Many of the original structures have been restored making Garnet one of the most authentic ghost towns in the state. Garnet is in the heart of the Garnet National Winter Trail System which offers exhilarating snowmobiling and cross-country skiing.

Pompeys Pillar

Pompeys Pillar National Historic Landmark is the only remaining physical evidence of the Lewis and Clark Expedition in Montana. In 1806, William Clark inscribed his name and the date in the sandstone outcropping that overlooks the Yellowstone River just off I-94 about 30 miles east of Billings. Interpretive tours of the pillar are available, and a small visitor center is on-site.

Missouri Breaks

The upper Missouri River and the rough terrain that surrounds it, called the Missouri Breaks, has changed very little since the Lewis and Clark Expedition first explored the "Mighty Mo" in 1805. The 149 miles of the Missouri from Fort Benton to the James Kipp Recreation Site is managed by BLM as part of the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System. River travelers can stop at BLM's visitor center in Fort Benton for maps and information before heading downstream through the fascinating White Cliffs area.

The public lands managed by BLM are jointly owned by all Americans, so treat your lands with respect and try to leave them better than you found them.

U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service

U.S. Department of the Interior

The service operates three national fish hatcheries and seven national wildlife refuges in Montana that provide opportunities for visitors to experience Montana's fish and wildlife firsthand.

The National Wildlife Refuge System is a diverse network of more than 90 million acres of lands and waters managed specifically for wildlife. Since 1903, almost 500 National Wildlife Refuges have been established enabling visitors to catch a glimpse of our unique wildlife heritage. The National Fish Hatchery System includes 78 national fish hatcheries, 6 fish technology centers, and 9 fish health centers across the country designed to help restore and enhance the nation's fishery resources.

National Fish Hatchery System

• Bozeman Fish Technology Center. Located in Bozeman, the center develops and tests alternative fish propagation practices to improve the quality of hatchery-produced fish and to enhance cost effectiveness of hatchery operations nationwide.

• Creston National Fish Hatchery. In the upper Flathead River Basin near Kalispell, Creston produces fish to mitigate for fish losses due to dam operations and to meet management programs on tribal, federal and state lands in Montana. Fish species produced include kokanee salmon, and cutthroat, rainbow, lake, and bull trout.

• Ennis National Fish Hatchery. Near Ennis, in southwestern Montana, the hatchery provides more than 30 million rainbow trout eggs annually. Eggs are supplied to hatcheries and other facilities throughout the United States, and fish are stocked in many Montana waters.

National Wildlife Refuge System

• Benton Lake National Wildlife Refuge. Just north of Great Falls, Benton Lake is one of the shimmering prairie jewels created as the last glacier worked its magic. This 12,500-acre refuge with its 5,000-acre marshy lakes offers activities such as wildlife observation, photography, and hiking.

• Bowdoin National Wildlife Refuge. Situated in the northeastern corner of Montana, east of Malta, Bowdoin lies in the Central Flyway of a great waterfowl migration corridor extending from Canada to Mexico. Look for massive flocks of migrating waterfowl in early fall and late spring.

• Charles M. Russell National Wildlife Refuge. Extending 125 airline miles up the Missouri River from Fort Peck Dam in north-central Montana, Charles M. Russell Refuge contains close to 1,100,000 acres. It includes native prairies, forested coulees, river bottoms, and badlands so often portrayed in the paintings of the colorful, early-day artist for whom this refuge is named.

• Lee Metcalf National Wildlife Refuge. In full view of the Sapphire and Bitterroot Mountains, 2,800-acre Lee Metcalf lies south of Missoula, along the Bitterroot River. Interpretive trails, photographic viewing blinds, a picnic area, and more, are available for the public to enjoy.

• Medicine Lake National Wildlife Refuge. 32,000-acre Medicine Lake lies on the glaciated rolling plains of extreme northeastern Montana. Visitors are invited to picnic, hike, or drive the self-guided tour route.

• National Bison Range. Located north of Missoula, the 19,000-acre refuge protects one of the most important remaining herds of 300-500 American bison. A visitors center, two self-guided drives, picnic sites, and a nature trail await visitors.

• Red Rock Lakes National Wildlife Refuge. Lying west of Yellowstone National Park, 44,000-acre Red Rock Lakes provides the solitude and isolation essential to the trumpeter swan. Photographers, birdwatchers, and other visitors will find Red Rock Lakes an unforgettable outdoor experience.

Bureau of Reclamation

U.S. Department of the Interior

Created in 1902 to provide water for irrigation of the arid lands of the western U.S., Reclamation has recently placed new emphasis on providing water-based recreation opportunities to the public. With 12 reservoirs to choose from, you'll find plenty of room to boat, fish, swim, or ski.

Reclamation projects generally feature diversion dams or storage reservoirs as integral features of their water delivery systems. Project reservoirs like Canyon Ferry Reservoir have developed into premier recreation sites providing hundreds of thousands of visitor days annually.

Many Reclamation Projects are managed for recreation by cooperating sister agencies and are listed in this guide. Canyon Ferry, as well as Pishkun and Willow Creek reservoirs and Intake Diversion Dam, are all managed for Reclamation by the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks. Gibson Reservoir, part of the Sun River Project, and Hungry Horse Reservoir are managed by the U.S. Forest Service. Lake Sherburne, in Glacier National Park, and Bighorn Lake, behind Yellowtail Dam in southeastern Montana, are both managed for recreation by the National Park Service. Other-agency-administered recreation sites are subject to the rules and regulations that the other agency chooses to apply. Contact the cooperating agency for information about recreation at these other-agency-administered lakes.

Reclamation also directly manages several projects for recreation, including Clark Canyon Reservoir and Barretts Park near Dillon, Tiber Reservoir (Lake Elwell) near Chester, Fresno Reservoir near Havre, Nelson Reservoir near Malta, Anita Reservoir near Pompeys Pillar, and the Huntley Diversion Dam on the Yellowstone River. All Reclamation-administered recreation sites are free of charge for camping and day-use. While not plush, our recreation sites are developed to meet basic, minimum health and safety standards. Vault toilets are standard in all camping areas, drinking water is provided at many locations. All project reservoirs are accessible by concrete boat ramp. Clark Canyon and Tiber reservoirs feature public concessions that provide visitors with on-site gasoline, grocery supplies, and other amenities. Because of their relative remoteness, Reclamation-administered recreation sites provide more primitive camping and related recreation opportunities than other, more developed lakes and reservoirs.

Outfitters and Guides

Let an outfitter show you the time of your life on a Montana adventure vacation. With their knowledge and infectious love of Montana, these professionals make getting off-the-beaten path and into the fun easy.

Under each of Montana's vacation countries are listed the names and addresses of outfitters and guides who provide recreational services including hunting, hiking, skiing, packing, fishng and float trips within that country. For quick reference, refer to the map on page 26. All Montana phone numbers are reached by area code 406.

For more information contact: Montana Board of Outfitters, Department of Commerce, 111 North Jackson, Helena, MT 59620, 444-3738; or Montana Outfitters & Guides Association, P.O. Box 9070, Helena, MT 59604, 449-3578.
